COPENHAGEN — Efforts to end the Russian-Finnish war, with Germany and Sweden as likely intermediaries, struck a swift pace today.

Success possibilities were brightened, in informed opinion, by these developments:

Reports that Soviet leaders had made a definite statement of terms to Finland;

Arrival here of Per Evind Svinhufvud, former president of Finland, en route by air to Berlin with the possibility foreseen that Germany might influence her friend Russia to settle the conflict;

Reported arrival of Finnish Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim and the Russian Marshal Vassily Blucher in Stockholm, center of the negotiations;

Continuance of the Stockholm conferences, strengthening the meeting ground of the Russian minister to Sweden, Mme. Alexandra Kollontay, and the former Finnish foreign minister, Eljas Erkko;

And enforcement of a strict Swedish censorship which was

Welles Asks 'Full Report' on Finn-Red Peace Parleys

(By United Press)

PARIS — Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles has asked the state department at Washington to cable him a full report of Swedish efforts to end the Russo-Finnish war, it was understood today.

Welles was interested in the reports that Sweden, at Russia's request and in co-operation with Germany, was seeking to end the war.

Any news he could obtain regarding negotiations was calculated to be of value to him in his talks here and in London as President Roosevelt's special envoy delegated to survey the state of the European war and the prospects for peace.

Particularly, it was understood Welles sought to inform himself fully of peace moves before he left for London Sunday, so he could discuss with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, the position of the Scandinavian governments as regards both the Russo-Finnish and European wars.

Then Welles visited Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, whom he had met in Washington in 1933

Welles and Herriot drove together to the home of Leon Blum, socialist leader and former popular front premier, whom Welles desired to see.

The talk between Welles and Herriot was reported to have centered on Finland.

The spokesman also commented that Japan shares Italy's views regarding British seizures of German coal and is prepared to support Italy to secure the rights of neutral nations. He did not explain however, what form this support ould take.

Farmhand Slays Girl, 9, After He Lures Her Home

Employe of Child's Father Attempts Assault, then Kills Self; County School Head Issues New Order to Halt Excusing of Pupils.

The fiendish murder of a nine-year-old, golden-haired Lexington school girl and the suicide of her 27-year-old slayer left a southern Richland county farm community stunned and bewildered today.

Lured from school yesterday by a story that her mother was seriously ill, the child, Lena Marjorie Gamble, was slain by her father's farm hand, Theodore Smith, 27, a suspected child molester, after he had attempted to assault her.

Unsuccessful in the attempted criminal attack in his bedroom, Smith then shot the child in the chest and sent a bullet into his head, Sheriff E P. Long said. He used a .22-caliber repeating rifle that was in the Gamble home. The double shooting occurred at the Gamble home on route 42 just inside the Richland county line, nine miles south of Mansfield.

Already aroused by recent arrests of child molesters and reports of other attempts to harm children, the community was stirred up to a high pitch after yesterday's tragedy Members of the Gamble family and neighbors who knew Smith were as much bewildered as angered to learn he had committed the crime. He was regarded in the community as a "good, hard-working farm hand."

Meanwhile Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, issued an order today to rural school superintendents and teachers to require a written excuse signed by at least one parent or a personal request from a parent or guardian before letting a child leave school.

"We're going to make some attempt to stop this business of getting children out of school on pretext," Robinson said.

He said he did not hold the Lexington teacher responsible for dismissing the Gamble child yesterday, since the teacher had no way of knowing it was a hoax and was told that Smith worked at the Gamble home.

SPUR HUNT FOR SEX-MAD KILLER

Columbus Police Lack Clues in Search For Man Who Assaulted 76-Year-Old Woman

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The sex-mad slayer of a frail 75-year-old woman was sought today on Columbus' East Side but police admittedly had few clues.

The bloody, almost nude body of Miss Alice Lauterbach was found by a neighbor on the living room floor of the recluse's rundown brick house at noon yesterday. A window was "jimmied" open; the back door was open; three kerosene lamps still burned from the night before

Her three rooms were in disorder with boxes and closets emptied in an apparently fruitless search for valuables

Coroner E. E Smith said that Miss Lauterbach had been criminally assaulted and that death was caused by shock and homorrhage.

Police found a heel print in Miss Lauterbach's back yard and a few strands of clothing fabric on top of her five-foot board fence The trail ended there.

Only five feet tall, stooped by age and illness, Miss Lauterbach was the victim of an assault nearly three years ago when someone entered her home, knocked her out of a chair, fractured her jaw and ransacked her house. She could give no description of the

Trade Program and Farm Funds Reach Crucial Tests

SENATE SCENE OF ACTION ON 2 BIG ISSUES

Finance Committee Gets Set to Vote on Farm Bill; Pittman Offers Trade Amendment.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The senate finance committee voted 12 to 8 today to approve, without amendment, the house-approved legislation to continue the administration's trade agreements program three years beyond next June 12.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Two key issues of the pre-election congressional session — the administration's reciprocal trade program and a quarter-billion dollars in farm funds—today reached crucial senate tests.

Before debate of the controversial hatch anti-politics bill was resumed on the senate floor, the finance committee gathered to vote on the three-year extension of the trade agreements act asked by President Roosevelt.

At the last hour, Senator Pittman (D.-Nev.) proposed an amendment to require senate ratification of all future trade pacts. Proponents of the existing law which authorizes the state department to negotiate agreements, promptly contended such a change would scuttle the program.

Vying for congressional attention with action on this major recommendation of Mr. Roosevelt was a rising clamor for a big increase in the farm payments he proposed.

The house trimmed the president's budget estimates for the agriculture department from $788,929,519 to $713,896,084. But farm state senators talked of a billion-dollar bill through additions of from $200,000,000 to $300,0000,000.

The appropriations subcommittee in charge of the annual agricultural supply bill scheduled final action on this economy vs. spending milestone today, with sentiment apparently in favor of the increase.

Insist on 'Parity Funds.

Chairman Russell (D.-Ga.) of the subcommittee said he would insist that the committee include an item from "parity" payments to farmers. Some committee members said this might total from $200,000,000 to $225,000,000, with an additional $70,000,000 to $85,000,000 for export subsidies and disposal of surpluses, as well as $25,000,000 for a farm tenancy program.

(If these increases should be approved by the senate and then the house, substantially all the savings thus far made by congress in an effort to avoid both new taxes and an increase in the statutory debt limit, would be wiped out.)

Administration leaders agreed that, if the subcommittee and then the full appropriations committee whip the farm bill into shape over the week-end, they would lay aside the trade agreements legislation in the senate Monday to consider it.

This understanding was reached on the assumption that the senate would vote today on legislation to extend to state employes, paid in whole or part with federal funds, the prohibitions against certain political activities placed on federal workers by the Hatch act.

Senator Hatch (D.-N.M.), author of the legislation, said he had heard reports that an attempt might be made to delay action on his bill until it could be shunted aside next week.

By a vote of 42 to 35 yesterday, and of 44 to 41 Wednesday, the senate refused to abolish the ban on political activity by government workers.

Youth, 19, Held In Scheme to Kidnap Star Judy Garland

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—A 19-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., youth was held for questioning by Los Angeles police today in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap Judy Garland, the 17-year-old singing movie star.

He gave his name as Bob Wilson, and admitted he was the person who gave an anonymous tip to police that the young actress was to be kidnaped from her Bel-Air home sometime last night.

Two other youths, about his age, were said to be the perpetrators according to Wilson's story to the police.

Wilson's phone call to the police resulted in picked squads of officers racing to the Garland home where a constant vigil was being maintained inside the home and out.

The tip came to police late last night and the telephone call was traced to Santa Monica.

Up and Down THE STREET

What with all the sweaters and dresses that are knit by Mansfield women, there must be hundreds of yards of short ends of yarn left over, and it is these leftovers which the Junior Red Cross children want for their own war relief program. All those bits of yarn, regardless of color or size, can be utilized. They will make little knit blocks and put them together for warm afghans which may cover some soldier or homeless child; and they will knit mufflers for the war victims. This was decided last night when the Sponsors club of the Junior Red Cross (made up of school teachers) met at chapter headquarters.

Girl Scouts Open Drive to Sell Cookies.

The cannons at Balaklava — you remember, to the right and left—weren't any more in evidence than the Girl Scout cookie vendors who started their big "cookie putsch" today.

Every Girl Scout in Mansfield is selling cookies. It is the major project for the celebration of their national anniversary week, March 10-17. Funds derived from the sale of the cookies will be used to set up an over-night and week-end recreational center for the girls. They hope to sell 3,000 boxes of them.

Orders for the cookies—there are 44 in a box—will be taken from today until March 18, and deliveries will be made March 30, 31 and April 1.

Girls were passing out samples today, confident that everyone who tasted a cookie would be certain to order one or more boxes. Anyone wanting to buy cookies may either call a Girl Scout's home or the Scout office, Canal 1871, in the Farmers Bank building.

EXPLAINS STATE WELFARE PLAN

Head of Women Voters Points to Need for New Division to End Over-Lapping.

The plan to set up a State Department of Public Welfare, which was turned down in the state assembly last year, but which will come before the next session of that body, was explained to members of the Mansfield League of Women Voters last night by their state president, Mrs. Simon Ross of Cincinnati.

The plan, which is sponsored by the State League among other groups, would correlate all phases of public welfare, so that families, children and dependent persons would not have to go from one public department to another before being given aid.

Mrs. Ross told the Mansfield women that such a department of Public Welfare would put an end to over-lapping of the various welfare agencies, would save tremendously on the cost of investigators, and would decrease the hold that politics has on public welfare and charitable operations.

"The bill to establish a department of Public Welfare was defeated last year largely through the opposition of politicians and county commissioners over the state," she said, "but undoubtedly it will come up again this next session of the state congress, backed by such groups as the Congress of P. T. A., Social Workers organizations, the Ohio Institute and the League of Women Voters, but unless there is sufficient understanding of the plan and pressure from voters back home, it is quite likely to fail again."

Mrs. Ross told of other phases of welfare work in the state that is being supported by the league.

Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, president of the Mansfield league, presided at the business session at which it was voted to retain the present officers, elected when the league was organized here several months ago, for the ensuing year.

LINER PLACED UNDER GUARD IN N. Y. PORT

Safe From Germany's Bombs And Subs, Ship Protected Against Souvenir Hunters.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—The Queen Elizabeth, new and gloomy mistress of the seas, presided today over a ghost fleet of luxury liners tied up at the Hudson river slips awaiting the end of the war.

Safe now from German bombs, whose peril had driven her from a Scottish shipyard in a secret, zig-zag maiden voyage before she had even had a trial run to shake her down, the 85,000-ton Cunard White Star super-liner's only dangers now were sabotage and souvenir hunting. To guard against these, 33 more policemen were detailed to the waterfront and all visitors were barred from the ship for her entire stay.

'Blacked Out' At Night.

Capt. John C. Townley, the Queen Elizabeth's skipper, had cleared up several points of the mysterious crossing. The ship had been brought to New York "for safety," he said. Much of her interior decorations were incomplete. The lighting system was not installed and wasn't needed anyhow, because she was "blacked out" at nights on her crossing.

She sailed from Greenock, Scotland, at 8 a. m. last Saturday.

A skeleton crew of 378 had been called aboard ostensibly for boat drill. Capt. Townley had been given sealed orders. He didn't know himself where he was going until he opened them. Four British warships escorted the liner out of the war zone.

They didn't meet a ship all the way across the Atlantic.

The strange looking double cable girdling the ship is Britian's new anti-magnetic mine device. It was invented by a Swedish professor named Gauss. The cables are electrified and the principle on which the device works is that the electrical current in the cables neutralizes the magnetic force present in the ship's hull—the force which attracts mines.

Capt. Townley doesn't know if it works, or if his ship ran over any mines. If the device did work any mines sown in his path by German submarines or airplanes would have been rendered harmless and he wouldn't know about them.

MARKHAM DEAD

Poet Who Wrote 'Man With The Hoe' Stricken At 87.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Edwin Markham has entered upon "the greatest of all adventures."

The poet who rose to fame on "The Man With The Hoe," died last night of pneumonia at the age of 87.

The painting of the same name by Jean Francois Millet served as Markham's inspiration for "The Man With the Hoe." He wrote it, a stanza a day, in 1886; then set it aside for 13 years before casually sending it to the editor of a San Francisco newspaper.

It was an immediate success.

His last years were plagued with a failing memory, age and infirmities, but with all he was not alarmed by his approaching end. He looked forward to exploring "the mysteries of the dead."

At the Algonquin last night they were reminiscing about the visit allegedly made by Harpo Marx to Woollcott's Vermont retreat, known as Witt's End. As a gag, Harpo had borrowed a broken-down, rattle-trap car, the world's oldest living automobile, to make his entrance in.

"This," he announced as he drove up to the door, "is my town car."

"What town," snapped Woollcott, "Pompeii?"

Meow.

A group of "DuBarry" showgirls was engaged in chit chat about the absent chorines in Bill Bertolotti's the other evening, and the talk finally settled on one helpless glamor girl who was jilted last week—but again.

"She has terrible luck with men," sighed one of the beauties.

"Yes," concluded Audrey Palmer. "She's been dropped more often—than a hint!"

Frank.

A visiting Hollywoodite who observed Marie Wilson surrounded by beaux in Colbert's a few nights ago amused his table companions by relating incidents from Marie's early days in the celluloid studios.

Marie is naive, but in a terribly smart way, and when she was struggling for her start and very slim around the bankroll, she was alternately flattered and chagrined by the attentions of an easy-spending playboy who kept sending her boxes of orchids, dozens of roses, two and three times a day.

This was very nice for a couple of weeks, and it certainly made the house look attractive, but every time Marie glanced in her purse she realized how impractical a flower can really be. Finally her common sense won out.

"Listen, honey," she told her admirer. "I need shoesies—not posies!"

Silly.

It's probably so old, but Grace Hartman is making people giggle with her story of the baby ear of corn that asked its mama where it came from.

"Why precious," the mama ear of corn replied, "the stalk brought you!"

Description.

At the Tavern the corner table tenants were discussing a well known and heartily disliked radio comedian, and one of the critics remarked that the fellow wouldn't be so bad if he weren't so conceited.

"Conceited?" scoffed Paul Douglas. "He's a human applause sign!"

* * *

Brush-Off.

Paul Muni bumped into producer Saul Colin a few days ago, and the latter rather indignantly inquired why Muni hadn't kept an appointment with him.

"I tried," said Muni. "But when I got to your office your secretary just took one look at me and said 'No casting'!"

Epitaph.

Vera Milton, once the most famous chorus girl on Broadway, has kept her sense of the comic through the past few years despite all kinds of adversity. The other midnight in Leon and Eddie's she was telling a group of friends what a tough time she had getting a job, and how she had to depend on old pals to see her through the days when she was broke.

"Honestly," sighed Vera, "for a long time there I could picture them writing on my tombstone: 'Milton—Parasite Lost'!"

* * *

Chic.

A massive dowager, garbed in 17 shrieking colors, toddled into the Waldorf's Empire Room the other night and left the customers speechless.

"Look," pointed Everett Hoagland, who was the first to recover his breath, "a size 44 rainbow!"

* * *

Fan.

Of course it couldn't be true, but Jerry Cooper, the crooner, swears that he asked a girl to go to see "Grapes of Wrath" with him and she said well, maybe, but what kind of a picture was it.

Cooper told her the story took place in the Dust Bowl.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—What's going on here? Are we seeing things? Has time done a back-flip and are we watching a re-make of "Elizabeth and Essex"?

No, dope. This is "The Sea Hawk." This is the same palace of Queen Elizabeth, but that's a different Queen Bess and that lady-in-waiting, the dark-haired beauty with the lute, the slim girl in pearl brocade, isn't Olivia De Havilland.

This Queen Bess is Flora Robson, not Bette Davis. This is quite all right, as Miss Robson was Queen Bess on stage and in pictures (see "Fire Over England") before our Bette's remarkable Bess came to technicolored life. Miss Robson was a superlative Queen Bess.

But when Queen Bess's lady-in-waiting isn't Olivia De Havilland, and Errol Flynn's leading lady in a swashbuckling drama isn't Olivia De Havilland, things are not according to Hoyle. There's a reason — Olivia was suspended for turning down "Saturday's Children."

* * *

Who's this new girl then? You wouldn't recognize her, but that's Brenda Marshall. Remember Brenda? The long-haired girl in "Espionage Agent"? No, you wouldn't know her these days . . .

There's Brenda now, for they've finished the scene. She's a charmer, with a will about her. A will? Well, a will, for one thing, not to be Olivia De Havilland.

When she went into the role here, the make-up department probably through habit put Olivia's lips on Brenda, and started curling her black hair in an Olivia coiffure. Why not? It was a Flynn romance, and in Flynn romances the leading lady has to be Olivia. Brenda took a look in the mirror and wiped off Olivia's lips and ran her fingers through Olivia's curls.

"I look like a floozy in curls," she said, or words to that effect. "I'd like my own lips, please—and a straight hair-do."

* * *

The latter request had its complications. After "Espionage Agent" Brenda had taken steps. That long wavy bob of hers loomed as a threat—a threat of "typing." Brenda didn't want to be a stereotyped glamour gal. She wanted to be different. She got a hair-cut—short. To put it up for "The Sea Hawk" the hairdresser had to use a switch. You'd never know it, though. It looks as if it "just growed" there. Neat.

Brenda is a Texas girl (San Antonio) although she was born in Manila while her father was doing a government job there. She decided to become an actress when she was in high school, and studied dramatics at Texas State College for Women, and under Madame Maria Ouspenskaya in New York. Next she worked in summer theaters for two years, then hit Broadway in one play before she began screen-testing.

She looks like a Latin type, but her real name is Arois Ankerson, and her folks are Danish and German by descent. She hasn't told Michael Curtiz, the director, about that yet. When she was testing for "The Sea Hawk," Mike was enthusiastic.

"Those Nordic types," said Mike, "they are so cold—no warmth. We need warmth for this part. You Latins have it."

Mansfield Man Says Vendol Beats Anything He Ever Saw

Declares Famous Medicine Made a New and Different Person Out of Him. Tells Experience to Help Others.

MR. MAURICE SIMPSON

"A few bottles of Vendol have made a new and different man out of me and I challenge anyone to feel more hale and hearty than I do," said Mr. Maurice Simpson employed by the State Highway Department and residing at 396 Oak Street, Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store. This enthusiastic statement praising Vendol will certainly attract anyone who is not feeling so well and is looking for a reliable medicine to put them on their feet.

"Mere words do not describe the suffering and discomfort I endured for years due to allowing myself to be constipated. This condition often caused bilious, dizzy spells, jittery headaches and made me so nervous that I couldn't get a restful night's sleep. The least exertion seemed to sap all my strength and I couldn't perform my duties in the way I wanted to.

"I would often skip meals because I frequently suffered from indigestion, sour stomach, gas and cramps and sometimes felt like there was a lump lodged in my throat.

"Since taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets my improvement has been amazing. It first gave me the most satisfying relief from constipation and this seemed to relieve all symptoms of biliousness, dizzy spells, sour acid, gassy stomach, and to calm the nervousness so that my sleep is long and restful. I haven't had a nervous headache lately and feel grand every day. Vendol beats anything I ever tried and that is why I want to tell others about it so they may get Vendol and enjoy the same relief."

Start today on this famous upbuilding medicine. All druggists sell Vendol and you can get full information about it from the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, corner of Main and 4th Streets.—Adv.

RUSSIAN-FINN PEACE MOVES SPEED AHEAD

Reports That Soviet Offers Definite Terms Brighten Mediation Prospects.

Blucher, mentioned as a possible Russian negotiator, was the famous commander of the Far Eastern Red army until the summer of 1938, when he was replaced and disappeared from public view. A few months later it was reported he had been given a war office assignment in Moscow; Soviet officials declined to comment on reports he had been "purged."

Early Decision Looms.

Well-informed circles believed that events now were moving so rapidly that a decision—especially regarding a possible armistice—would be reached soon.

Informed opinion was inclined to grant increased possibilities of success to the negotiations, there being a growing belief that Germany was directly interested and that German influence upon Russia offered a major hope for settlement.

Great significance was laid on the fact that Soviet leaders apparently had established contact with the Helsinki government despite previous assertions that they would negotiate only with the Soviet-sponsored government set up at Terijoki in the wake of the Red Army.

It was regarded as highly unlikely that Finland would consider yielding to reported Russian demands for the strategic southwestern port of Hanko and the Petsamo district on the Arctic ocean, although some arrangement concerning the city of Viipuri and the Karelian isthmus was held possible.

Despite reports that the Soviet proposal was an ultimatum to Finland, there was a strong belief among competent observers that the Russians themselves were anxious to terminate the conflict that began Nov. 30.

Reports that the western powers were considering demanding the right to transport troops across Norway and Sweden to Finland have in the meantime accentuated Scandinavian hopes for a settlement to avoid having northern Europe turned into a theater of war.

In Oslo, the newspaper Tidens Tegn editorially pointed out that Germany would undoubtedly have to move to counter any formal help given to Finland—possibly by sending an expeditionary force of her own against Helsinki—and that "a last resort for peace is now some form of compromise."

Stockholm remained isolated from the outside world so far as direct news of peace talks there was concerned.

Every telephone call from the Swedish capital was checked to prevent transmission of reports on the negotiations.

This was taken to indicate the delicacy of the position in which neutral Sweden finds herself while striving to arrange a peace to prevent developments which might involve Sweden herself.

Finns 'Going Way of Poland,' Reds Warn.

MOSCOW —(INS)— A warning that Finland is "going the way of Beck's Poland" was delivered by the Moscow radio today.

(Editor's Note: Josef Beck, foreign minister of Poland before the Russo-German occupation, led the resistance to Germany's first demands upon his country.)

The broadcaster made no mention of Russo-Finnish peace negotiations, he declared:

"Finland must accept responsibility for her actions. Everything that has occurred and the consequences that will follow can be traced directly to Franco-British provocation."

Sweden to Resist Foreign Troop Transfer.

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—The Swedish parliament's foreign affairs committee was reported reliably today to have decided that passage of foreign troops across Sweden to the aid of Finland would be resisted by all means.

The committee met in continuous session Tuesday and Wednesday as reports circulated here that a special Russian envoy had been in Stockholm for a week to participate in discussion of future Russo-Finnish relations.

It was reported, also, that Russia had issued no ultimatum to Finland but intended to continue its offensive on all Finnish fronts.

The foreign affairs committee met, it was understood, not to consider the possibility of Russian terms to Finland but in connection with what was described as an Allied tendency to consider prompt and large scale intervention in Finland.

Such intervention, the Swedes, recognized, would create complications which might involve Sweden in war.

by the force of the impact. Locked in the center of the highway, traffic over the road was held up for more than an hour.

Long lines of trucks and passenger cars were halted at the crests of hills on either side of the accident.

Fried told patrolmen that he was driving only 15 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

"I saw the other car coming towards me," he said "It began to skid. As I applied the brake I slid into the guard rail and then back onto the highway as the other car swung across the highway."

Four other persons were hurt, none seriously, when an automobile driven by Sidney Haminnan, 32, Youngstown, skidded on U. S. route 42, three miles north of Mansfield and crashed into a car driven by Leon B. Brewster, 51, of Brecksville at 10 a. m., state patrolmen reported.

Both drivers were treated for bruises and lacerations.

Two passengers in Haminnan's car were also treated for bruises. They were James Paschell, 51, and Angelo DeGennaro, 33, both of Youngstown.

The temperature, which was six degrees below freezing as the rain fell, rose to 28 degrees at noon.

The weather forecast predicted that it would be fair tonight with rising temperatures Saturday followed by rain over the week-end.

Blue Goose Succeeds Sports as City League Champ

By CHARLES MARTIN

FOR THE FIRST TIME in three years a new king sits in the throne room of the City Class A basketball league.

It is the Blue Goose Sohio club and it gained possession of the precious seat by stopping the defending championship Yuncker Sports, 45 to 33, in a title playoff contest at Mansfield high last night.

* * * * *

A disappointing crowd of 200 was on hand to see the action and was rewarded with a thriller and it also got a glimpse of "ghost" basketball on the same program.

* * * * *

Shelley's Chocolates and the Westinghouse Electrics donned the ghost-like uniforms and attempted to pump an illuminated ball through the hoop. The Shelley club took a 10 to 8 decision.

While the phantom game, which was introduced to cage fans this season, proved to be a novelty it convinced the spectators that it would never contain the thrills of the regular court affray.

Trailing for nearly two periods, the Sohioans suddenly began to find themselves and pulled away from the Sports to win easily.

Blue Goose forged into the lead in the opening seconds of the hotly-contested tussle, but the Sports, fighting to retain a chance of annexing their third straight City league crown, moved ahead midway in the period and seemed to be on their way.

The clubs waged a nip-and-tuck battle through the third stanza, but the Blue Goose combine's speed, coupled with some accurate shooting, soon found the Yuncker team on the short end of the score. Four times the score was tied in that period.

Tom Farrell, whose rebounding was a standout for the Sohioans, sank a midcourt shot late in the second frame to give his teammates an 18 to 14 lead, but Al Stickler quickly connected twice to knot the score at halftime.

Coming back after the rest period, the Sports held a 24 to 22 advantage. From there on in, however, it was all Blue Goose. Farrell tipped in two easy shots at that point and the Sohioans moved into the lead.

The Yuncker five led, 10 to 4, in the first quarter, and the Sohioans were ahead, 29 to 24, at the three-quarter mark.

Stickler set the individual pace with 14 points, while Bob Bogantz topped the winners with 12 markers. The Sports' lineup was weakened by the absence of John Rees, regular forward.

* * * * *

Elmer Dials of the Chocolates and John Schuster of the Westies were the only "ghosts" to tally two baskets in the weird game.

* * * * *

Most of the time was spent with Referee Joe Atton calling a jump ball or placing the ball out of bounds. Practically everytime a player secured the ball the players immediately tied him up

The clubs played two five-minute periods in the first half, and two four-minute quarters.

Tyger Cagers Bid for Berth In Finals Tonight

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

A NEW golf game has been designed, but it is not recommended for tired business men. It is for ball players who want to strengthen their legs and it requires that the members of the foursome race down the fairway after driving. Fastest one gets choice ball. Jesse Owens would be pretty good at this game, we believe. . . . About 65 golfers classed as pros turn amateur annually. USGA permits switch provided player has been pro less than five years and has played as true amateur three years prior to reinstatement. . . . The Massillon-Canton Lehman game scheduled for 1940 at Canton has been cancelled in order that the Tigers may schedule a better gate attraction for their home field. Lehman, playing at Massillon, was a poor attendance attraction the past two seasons. For NOT playing the game, Massillon officials placed a cool $1,250 in the Lehman cash till. And, we might add, that's better than taking a whipping.

Jock Sutherland, ex-Pitt mentor, may coach at Temple next year. Philly reports say that the contract Jock signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers contains a clause which allows the dour dentist to abrogate the agreement in case he received an attractive college offer.

Barrett Almost Sure of Dom's Job.

JOHNNY BARRETT, who helped patrol the Mansfield garden in 1937, has just about cinched Dom DiMaggio's spot in the San Francisco outfield, according to reports from the coast team's training camp. . . . It's possible that Col. E. R. Bradley may take first, second, third and fourth in the Kentucky Derby. Bimelech was undefeated as a two-year-old and, undoubtedly, will be the favorite. Boy Angler, Bashful Duck and Bold and Bad, all pretty fair horses, are his other challengers. All Bradley horses have names starting with B. . . . Somebody is going to be surprised when Max Baer and Tony Galento meet in May. Max thinks Tony is washed up and Tony has the same idea about Maxie. Both figure they've got pushovers. . . . Fritz Howell, A-P sports writer, believes Harry Mehock has stolen a march on George Gauthier, director of the Ohio Wesleyan Relays. He refers to the wrist watches to be presented to the Mansfield winners.

The Rex Billiards, 1939 kings, and the Farmers remained a half game behind the pace-maker by tallying victories. Raemelton swamped the Augustine Canfields, 50 to 17, with Kenny Hardin collecting 25 points, and the Cuemen beat the Daley Cafe team, 38 to 30.

The Dairy quint was behind, 16 to 12, as it went into the last quarter and then staged a thrilling rally to emerge the winner. The Isaly outfit outscored its rivals, 12-3, in that frame.

Greenberg Shows 'Em He Can Play Outfield

Tall Tiger Goes and Gets Them With All the Skill of a Tris Speaker In Camp.

By HARRY FERGUSON

LAKELAND, Fla.—(U.P.)—The tall guy loped back to the left field fence and picked off a line drive with all the skill of a Tris Speaker.

Riding the crest of a great career, Hank Greenberg has switched from first base to the outfield—the most daring experiment of the 1940 baseball season.

Ball players who have starred in two positions are rare. Bucky Walters, a so-so third baseman, developed into a great pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds. Jimmy Foxx, a natural ball player, would be a star at first base, third base or behind the plate. There are a few others but any manager who takes an outstanding first baseman and switches him to the outfield is taking a long gamble.

* * *

Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers took that gamble in an attempt to make a place in his lineup for Rudy York, the belting Indian who may be one of the hardest hitters of the last five years. York was tried as an outfielder and a catcher, and he wasn't a ball of fire at either job.

* * *

First base seemed to be the only place where he would fit, but standing on first base for the Tigers was Hankus Pankus Greenberg, a savage hitter, a sweet fielder—a man who was voted the most valuable player in the American league in 1935.

During the winter Greenberg was called to Detroit. Everyone thought it was to discuss salary—Hank is among the highest paid players in the game—so there was no little surprise when the announcement was made that York was the first baseman this season for the Tigers and that Greenberg was going to the outfield.

"I'll do my best out there," Hank said.

Today he is doing his best and it looks pretty good. Harry Heilmann, the great outfielder for Detroit years ago who had the misfortune to be overshadowed by Ty Cobb, is down here and he peered out through the sun as Greenberg snagged one fly ball after another.

Manager Baker is not the least bit worried about Greenberg and does not believe that the switch to the outfield will affect Hank's batting eye.

* * *

"Greenberg is a natural ball player," Baker said. "He's the kind that never has any trouble picking up new technique. No manager has to worry about a man who plays ball by instinct and that's the kind of a fellow Greenberg is."

* * *

Spring training is only about a week old, but everybody takes it for granted that Greenberg will make good. The baseball writers who chose the American and National league all-star teams to play in Tampa for the Finnish relief fund on March 17 put Greenberg on the squad as an outfielder although none of them had ever seen him play away from first base.

Greenberg's future, obviously, is linked with York. Bets are being made that York's fielding will not be good enough and that Greenberg will be back on first by July 4. But nobody is betting that Greenberg won't turn into a high class outfielder.

Broaca Shows Indians Speed

Bespectacled Hurler May Win Starting Role.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(U.P.)—Bespectacled Johnny Broaca, the Yale alumnus who hardly classifies as a rookie, unveiled a new fast ball and a fresh burst of confidence today to brighten the hue of the Cleveland baseball picture.

Broaca, an in-and-outer (mostly the latter) with the Tribe last season, poured his speed at the Indian batters yesterday and few of the regulars were able to meet the ball solidly.

* * *

If he can keep the fast ball, and more important the confidence, Broaca has the stuff to become an added starter to the Indians none too robust mound corps, in the opinion of Manager Oscar Vitt and other experts.

* * *

Vitt indicated he would use Ken Jungels, Cal Dorsett, Millard Howell and Don Pulford as pitchers in the initial six-inning regulars vs. Yannigan game today.

President Alva Bradley was due to arrive today accompanied by Oscar Grimes, valuable utility infielder, who is recovering from an operation.

Bradley may get together with Johnny Allen, the No. 1 holdout, in Allen's headquarters at St. Petersburg.

Tackle Little Giants

Hoffman Cheered by Return of Beer, But Expects Trouble at Sandusky.

THEIR shootin' eyes sharpened by a week of hard drills, the Mansfield high hoopsters return to Sandusky and district tournament competition tonight.

Scheduled to meet the favored Little Giants of Fremont in a semi-final tilt at 7:30 p. m., the Tygers were set to shoot the works in their bid for advancement to the elimination finals.

* * *

The Tygers have no illusions about the size of the task which awaits them, and it was apparent in drills this week that they regard tonight's assignment seriously.

* * *

Coach Vern Hoffman's chief hope is that his charges are able to hit the basket more consistently than they have in recent games. His men did well enough to eliminate Sandusky, but he realizes they must do this in every game to continue to advance.

There can be no let-downs in tournament play, and this is one of the reasons Hoffman worked overtime these days on the practice court to keep his ball players fired to a high pitch.

Hoffman was given some relief today when it was learned that Russ Beer, his big center, has shaken off the cold which threatened to keep him out of uniform.

* * *

With Beer certain to start, the Mansfield lineup will remain unchanged, with Jack Shiplet, Gene Miller, Harry Phillips and Don Rose filling the other berths.

* * *

This game will be followed by a semi-final meeting between Ashland and Bellevue.

It's Lumbago, Not Old Age, Tiger Learns

Trainer Reports Gehringer Injury Not Serious; Threatened to Quit.

LAKELAND, Fla.—(INS)—A collective sigh of relief was heaved by the Detroit Tigers today when Club Trainer Denny Carroll reported Second Baseman Charley Gehringer was suffering from only an attack of lumbago and had not, as was first believed, seriously injured his back while working out.

Gehringer threatened to quit baseball earlier in the week when he complained of a back pain after he had chased a fly ball. He said that failure of the sprain to heal would mean his leaving the sport.

AVALON, Cal. —(INS)— The first edition of what may be the Chicago Cubs at the opening of the baseball season a few weeks hence was slated to be unveiled today as the Bruins prepared for their first intra-club game. Two young lefthanders, Verne Olsen and Ken Raffensberger, were to pitch for the regulars, while the team's two ranking hurlers, Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, were nominated for the Yannigans.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—(INS)—Manager Frankie Frisch continued to stress sliding today with his Pittsburgh Pirates. Frisch had a special sawdust and sand pit constructed for the Buccos to practice in, explaining it was an important maneuver on the baseball field.

* * *

LONG BEACH, Cal. —(INS)— With four straight wins in the record, Connie Mack's impressive Athletics paired off with the Los Angeles club today after walloping Seattle, 4 to 1, at San Fernando. The A's won with seven hits behind the five-blow hurling of Pitchers Buck Ross, Elon Hogsett and Johnny Babich.

* * *

LAKELAND, Fla.—(INS)— Veteran Shortstop Dick Bartell brought to the Detroit Tigers in a trade from the Chicago Cubs, was in the spotlight today by virtue of a looping home run that tallied three runs to break up an intra-club game. Bartell smashed the homer with two aboard to give his team a 3-2 victory.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(INS)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees today revealed that he was grooming young Outfielder Tommy Henrich for an emergency first baseman's position in case Babe Dahlgren doesn't pan out as successor to Lou Gehrig. The Babe is determined to do better than his .235 batting average last year.

The Bluejay combine faces Tiffin Calvert in a semi-final contest at 8:30 and it will be interesting to see if it can maintain the sizzling scoring pace.

* * *

Bettsville and Bluffton tangle in the other semi-final tilt at 9:30 p. m. Bettsville topped Carey, 29 to 24, and Bluffton defeated Fostoria St. Wendelin, 47 to 33, in quarter-final games last night.

In winning the Richland county tourney championship Bellville averaged 35 points per game in three contests, and has piled up a 38 per cent mark in two sectional tussles.

Calvert, in reaching the semi-final setto, has advanced at the expense of Thompson and North Robinson. The Tiffin club hasn't encountered a fast-breaking attack in the sectional meet yet, but Bellville should test the Calvert defense.

Tiffin's main task will be to halt Capt. Bill Martin and Howard "Tick" Hamilton, Bellville's principal scoring threats.

* * *

The two lads have averaged nearly 13 points per tilt and show no signs of letting up. Hamilton holds the high individual mark for a single game in the sectional meet with his 17 points tallied against Ada last week.

* * *

While the Bluejay outfit has been concentrating on its offense, it has also compiled a good defensive record. In the five games, opponents have averaged 27 points a game.

The United States now is the world's greatest consumer of onions, statistics show. Perhaps that's the reason Uncle Sam is said to be so unpopular in Europe.

One thing we like about March is that it is the only month during which all baseball teams look like potential champions.

European belligerents continue to drop leaflets on the enemy populace. This is one war which is being fought down to the last printing press.

SELECT ISSUES EDGE FORWARD IN QUIET MART

Wall Street Encouraged By Earnings Statements; Bonds Emulate Stocks.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selected stocks, under leadership of aircrafts, again edged forward in today's market.

While dealings were relatively quiet from the start, fractional advances were widely distributed.

Bonds inclined to emulate stocks. Commodities and foreign securities markets were a trifle mixed.

Wall Street sentiment appeared much brighter than in recent weeks. Earnings statements for 1939 continued to bring support for individual shares. In addition, some analysts saw bullish omens on the recently cloudy economic horizon. There also were forecasts of expanded European war purchases, especially of warplanes.

Holders of merchandising shares were unconcerned by the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing this week's retail spending throughout the country topped the same period last year by less than had been expected.

Studied was the report of the commerce department indicating that, although February showed no signs of a reversal in the business downtrend, data for the last two weeks of the month revived hopes the decline was leveling off. Volume of new orders, the report added, is still generally below production and backlogs of unfilled orders have been reduced despite a sharp fall in industrial output in the past two months.

Auditor Explains Bank Not Liable For Delinquent Taxes.

Through an error for which the county auditor's office assumed the blame, the Farmers Savings and Trust company, Mansfield, was listed in a legal advertisement in The News-Journal Wednesday as the owner of a number of properties on which taxes are delinquent, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

The bank is only the trustee for the lots and is not responsible for the payment of taxes on them, Wolfe said.

GIRL'S SLAYING BY FARMHAND STUNS COUNTY

Double Tragedy Occurs After Child's Lured to Home on Pretext Mother Is Ill.

youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Gamble. She was a fourth grade pupil in the Lexington school. Smith had worked at the Gamble farm for the past three months.

Both parents were in Mansfield at the time of the tragedy. The father was at work at the Erie freight yards where he is a brakeman and the mother was shopping in the city. She had gone to Mansfield with Gamble about 9:30 a. m.

The child's body was sprawled on Smith's bed in an upstairs room at the back of the house. Smith's body was on the sofa in the living room at the front of the house. A bullet had entered the middle of his forehead. The rifle was laying across his chest.

Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said both the girl and Smith had been dead since shortly after noon. There was evidence that an attempt had been made to attack the child, but she had not been assaulted, his examination revealed. He gave a verdict of murder and suicide.

Shot in the right side of the chest, the child apparently had struggled after she was wounded for the bed clothing was dishevelled and splattered with blood. The sheet bore bloody finger prints from her hands. She died from hemorrhage of the lungs, the coroner said.

Runs For Help.

After making the gruesome discovery, the grief-stricken mother ran to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. D. P. Gardner, just across the highway, calling for help. Mrs. Gardner went out to the highway and hailed two automobiles. Ernest Kiser of near Shelby, driver of one of them, called the sheriff. In the other car were Mrs. Clyde Turner, 117 East Dickson avenue, and Mrs. Margery Ludwig, 50½ Park avenue west.

"I just knew there was something wrong when I went in the house and saw Marjorie's dinner pail in the kitchen with nothing taken out of it," the mother sobbed.

"Then I went into the living room and saw Theodore's body and I dreaded to go upstairs. I went up anyway and found her there."

She said she saw the child's snow suit on a chair in the living room and called for her. When there was no answer she went upstairs and first looked in Marjorie's room, then in Smith's room where the body was found.

A frail woman in poor health, the mother was prostrated with grief and was taken to the Gardner home soon after sheriff's officers and neighbors arrived.

Child's Funeral Sunday.

The bodies were taken to the Snyder Funeral home in Lexington. Funeral services for the child will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Gamble residence and at 2:30 p. m. at the Grace Evangelical church in Johnsville, Rev. C. A. Thompson, pastor of the Congregational church at Lexington, will officiate. Burial will be in the Shauck cemetery.

Ora O. Snyder, Lexington funeral director who had charge of the bodies, said attempts to contact Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Smith of Lindside, W. Va., Smith's parents, had been unsuccessful at noon today.

Snyder said funeral arrangements for the suicide victim would not be completed until the parents had been reached. Smith also is survived by an aunt, Mrs. Walter Fleshman of Lexington.

The first officers to reach the home were Deputy Sheriffs Glenn Freeman and J. R. Hetler who were in the Lexington area when the sheriff's office was notified. They were told of the shooting by Deputy G. C. Humphrey who received the call at the sheriff's office in the county jail.

At the scene a little later were Sheriff E. P. Long and Coroner Winbigler.

Crime Planned Carefully.

Sheriff Long said Smith, knowing that Mr. and Mrs. Gamble would be away from home most of the day, had planned the crime carefully before going to the school for the girl.

A back door to the kitchen was blocked from the outside by a washing machine which had been shoved against it to prevent the child from escaping, the sheriff said. Other doors in the house were locked.

Smith never talked much about himself, Gamble related. "He came here from West Virginia and we understood he was in California last year before he came to work for us," he said.

The sheriff said he learned that Smith had bought a tankful of gasoline for his car in Lexington before calling at the school for the Gamble child, indicating that he may have planned a get-away if the assault on the girl had not been frustrated.

Mrs. Avanell C. Hall, the girl's teacher said a young man whom she believed to be Marjorie's brother came to school and asked for her at the close of the morning recess at 10:45 a. m.

Said Girl's Mother Ill.

He said Marjorie's mother was very sick and wanted her to come home right away and had sent him for the child. Mrs. Hall related to officers.

"I told Marjorie and she went with him after getting her coat, books and dinner pail. She seemed to know him well so I didn't suspect there was anything wrong," the teacher said.

Mrs. Hall, who returned to school recently after recovering from serious injuries received in an automobile accident several weeks ago, was highly nervous and upset over the tragedy.

Gamble said he had sent Smith to the back of the farm in the morning to cut briars.

"When he left the house, he was dressed in his workclothes," Gamble said, "but he must have come back and changed them after we left."

The father of the girl said he couldn't remember that Smith had ever gone to school for the child. She always rode in the school bus, he told officers.

Smith was dressed in his best clothes when his body was found. His overalls and jacket were on a chair in his room.

Marjorie was the only child at home. Another daughter, Mrs. Blanche Texter, 20, lives in Lexington, and a son, John, 22, also of Lexington, is employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company plant. Both were called home as soon as the bodies were discovered.

Gamble has been employed as a brakeman for the Erie railroad in Mansfield for 23 years. He goes to work about 9 a. m. and works until late in the afternoon, driving home every night. He has always had a hand to take care of his 80-acre farm, he said. The Gambles have lived on the farm for 15 years.

Near County Line.

The Gamble residence is a large yellow brick house on the west side of route 42 just south of the roadside park at the edge of the county. The home is less than 500 feet from the Morrow county line.

Smith had worked on the Gamble farm since the middle of last December, taking care of most of the farm chores while Gamble was at work in Mansfield.

"He was the best worker I have ever had, and he never did anything to make us suspect him," Gamble said.

The father was surprised when Sheriff Long told him that officers were searching for Smith last fall. He always had been well behaved around the home and had never shown that he was interested in the child, Gamble told the sheriff.

Deputy Sheriff Freeman said Smith had also been a suspect in a robbery in Mansfield several months ago, but authorities were unable to find enough evidence against him to make an arrest.

Sheriff Long pointed out that Smith had traded automobiles since he was sought last fall for molesting small girls in Lexington. At that time officers were looking for a dark coupe they knew he was driving, the sheriff said. Since then Smith had acquired a small coupe with yellow wheels which was parked in the garage back of the Gamble home yesterday.

The sheriff said he had first suspected Smith early last fall when it was reported he was attempting to lure small girls into alleys at the outdoor movie shows in Lexington.

CUTS MINIMUM AGE LIMIT FOR POLICE, FIREMEN

Civil Service Board Reduces Requirements to 21 Years, Sets Exam for March 29.

Minimum age requirements for applicants to the city fire and police departments had been reduced today by the civil service commission.

Meeting yesterday in special session, the commission reduced to 21 years the minimum age requirement for applicants to both departments. The minimum age requirement for patrolmen had been 25 years and firemen 22.

Competitive examinations for the purpose of establishing eligible lists from which patrolmen, firemen, waterworks pumpmen, rodmen and draftsmen will be selected will be held March 29 at the city building.

George Biddle, chairman of the commission, said the minimum age requirements for patrolmen had been reduced at the request of Police Chief, Meade K. Bates.

'Break' for Younger Men.

Approving the idea of giving younger men just out of high school and college a chance to gain employment with the city, Biddle said the commission had reduced the minimum age to 21 for applicants on practically all city jobs. There is a question of experience, however, in connection with the engineering positions.

Applications for the examinations will be accepted at the office of the commission in the city building from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. Saturday, March 16, Biddle said.

TRIMS SEWAGE PLANT POWER COSTS IN TEST

Turner Reports $158 Savings by Using Minimum Amount of Air in February.

A 30-day test run in the treatment process at the municipal sewage plant last month resulted in a power savings of $158, James R. Turner, plant superintendent, reported today.

Turner's monthly report to city council showed that power costs at the plant during February totaled $500, or $158 less than the power expenditure in January.

He explained that in order to effect economy, a test run had been made in the treatment process, using a minimum amount of air which had resulted in a corresponding drop in the power usage.

His report also showed that more than 2,000,000 gallons of sewage was by-passed around the plant as the result of excess storm water from roofs that drained into the sanitary sewer system.

97 Per Cent Treated.

The report revealed that 97 per cent of all sewage entering the plant last month was given full treatment as compared with 90 per cent during January and 77 per cent during February, 1939.

It also showed that sewage given full treatment had a purification percentage of 91 per cent, a one per cent increase over the month previous.

A total flow of 94,000,000 gallons was reported last month. Of that amount Turner said 92,000,000 gallons was given full treatment.

Gas production, which was slightly short of 2,000,000 cubic feet would have been more than enough to supply all the electric power necessary for operation had it been utilized, he added.

Costs Only Price Of Destroyer to Run the League

GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—League of Nations statisticians figured recently that the League annual budget has dropped from the cost of a second class battleship to the price of an ordinary destroyer.

Recent budgetary cuts brought on by resignations, failures to pay the League assessments and the busting of Russia forced the League to operate annually on about $5,000,000 instead of the previous $7,500,000.

Statisticians say you could only buy a fairly good destroyer for the 1940 budget figure while the 1939 expenditures would have paid for a light battleship.

They even went on from there and figured out that the 1940 arms budget for the United States would pay the League's operating expenses for the next 440 years.

SAVES CAR TO RESCUE DOLLY

Child Shows Real Presence of Mind in Runaway Auto.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Robin Slocumb is only 7 years old but she thought and acted quickly when the family sedan, in which she was sitting alone, started to roll down hill. Tugging at the emergency brake, she was too weak to set it.

She then seized the steering wheel and ran the car aside so that it came to rest against a tree.

"I was afraid my dolly would get hurt," Robin explained later.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1940.

Some fellows around town are still trying to make an honest living playing slot machines.

One of the reasons for Vic Donahey's high standing in state and nation is that his common sense is so uncommon.

With 232 questions to be answered by each farmer, the rural census taker will probably revive the old custom of staying for dinner.

Would Limit Voting Rights

ALMOST as ridiculous as some of the so-called "pension plans" that have been promoted in recent years is a current proposal called the "One-Two Plan" under which citizens with tax receipts would have two votes and those without tax receipts only one vote in state elections.

It is not unlikely that absurd pension schemes of various sorts encouraged the idea, as its advocates express belief that this restriction would prevent possible adoption of some wild economic proposal such as "$30-on-Thursday," "Ham-and-Eggs," and the like.

Another group suggests not permitting anyone to vote who has been on relief three years or more.

Neither of these notions deserves more than passing attention, for the reason that they are fundamentally out of accord with the progress of democracy and the acceptance of universal suffrage, regardless of financial status or intelligence.

The objective, in a democracy, is to bring each of its members to the point of understanding the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, rather than to penalize ignorance, poverty and misfortune.

All in all, dependence must be placed in the competency and sound sense of the majority of voters in this country, and in the various states and subdivisions of government, rather than in withdrawal of equal voting rights from any minority group.

Fate of Small Nations

ARE small nations going to disappear? Columnist Jay Franklin says that the Finns, while fighting nobly for their independence, are "already obsolete." That is, as representatives of "European evolution." He thinks the small, independent sovereignties, however admirable, will probably have the steam roller run over them. Such countries by this theory would be absorbed politically and racially as small, independent business institutions in our modern economy are absorbed by big corporations.

If this is true, then alas for Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, the Scandinavian sisterhood and all the fine, brave little countries that have saved their souls and given variety to our modern civilization. "The individual withers, and the world is more and more." Well do we know that now. But must nationalism and racialism disappear, too?

Even that might be worth while, if we could gain real human brotherhood and abolish war. But even then, it would be in many ways a much less interesting and admirable world than the one we have known.

Move to Purify Water Courses

GRATIFYING progress is being made in the fight to restore the cleanliness and purity of American streams. Many states are now engaged in this task, and their efforts are supplemented by federal action. The house of representatives has just adopted a measure for this purpose without opposition. It prohibits the creation of any new sources of pollution on navigable streams or their tributaries without federal sanction. The senate had already approved the measure in a different form, and the two bills will soon be harmonized for final action.

The next generation may find it surprising that, in the debate on this mild restrictive measure, critics complained that it would compel farmers and small mill owners to get permission from Washington to carry on some of their normal operations.

Almost everyone who gets around much knows that American streams have been shamefully polluted, and often without any defensible reason. It is the exception nowadays, in any well-peopled region, to find rivers or creeks not cluttered up and made filthy by dumping miscellaneous refuse into them.

A visit to Canada is illuminating and reproaching on this point. Almost every Canadian city or village has a stream running through it. The water in those streams is nearly always clear, pure, and free from refuse and rubbish.

Japanese Culture Tower

AMERICAN attention is drawn to a little Japanese project for the benefit of posterity. A Toyko newspaper is going to deposit newspapers, photographs and other documents, gathered throughout the world, in a Culture Tower room. When it is filled, the door will be locked and the key hidden for 100 years.

The idea is to show people a century hence "what this generation did for the benefit of future generations." Probably the world is undergoing a big change, says the sponsor, and records of this extraordinary era will be worth preserving.

Very likely they will. And the project seems much like one undertaken last year in New York, where records were buried in the ground. In both cases posterity may be amused, if not instructed.

It cannot now be foreseen what the Japanese people themselves, in the year 2040, will think of the records and pictures of the "Chinese Incident," if that tragic event is made a part of the record. They may regard the recent burning, bombing and killing as very barbarous.

Checking On Dire Forecasts

A REASSURING practice is to put dire prophecies on file where they will turn up automatically a few months later. So many of them never are fulfilled. As the reader looks them over again, after time has passed, and realizes that many of his worst fears were groundless, he begins to get hardboiled about prophecies in general.

Plenty of disagreeable and terrifying things happen, but not so many as are predicted. Checking on the alarmists now and then may not stop them from prophesying, but should help others to study events more calmly.

The Chinese are said to enjoy radio most when programs overlap—and they should have no trouble about that, judging from the U.S., in which listeners over here can tune in a speech, with a background of music, comedy and bedtime story.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Dr. Otto L. Preminger, who plays the part of an arrogant, pig-headed German consul in "Margin for Error" on Broadway, and who conducts classes at Yale and lectures to women's clubs when he isn't directing other plays on Broadway, comes fairly close to being a creature of habit.

He takes poison every night at 10:15 and then while a stagehand or some other acceptable substitute impersonates the body for the rest of the play he gets into his street clothes and walks over to the Belasco theater, where he catches the last act of John Barrymore in "My Dear Children," which he directed.

You would think that seeing the last act of the same play every night would become monotonous, but Mr. Preminger explains this by saying that it isn't the same play at all.

"No play is the same on successive nights when Barrymore is the star. Tonight the last curtain may fall at 11:20, but tomorrow it may not come down till midnight. The lines are always different, and the moods vary too. Barrymore's play is one of moods, although I will admit that many of the moods were never put there by the authors."

* * *

BUT, as with all things, including even a Barrymore play, the last act must end sometime, and when this happens, still the creature of habit, Dr. Preminger moves leisurely across town to Fefe's Monte Carlo, where he indulges in a beverage that has the town talking.

"I'm being despised by waiters in all the night clubs because, instead of brandy, I'm drinking hot orange juice," he explains. "It's good for my digestion, and I don't get dronk."

Mr. Preminger says "dronk" where you would say "drunk" because he is from Vienna, and he stresses the word "from."

"I've crossed the ocean only once and that is enough. In December I will be here five years and by that time I will be an American citizen. I came over in 1935 to direct "Libel" for my good friend Gilbert Miller, and I am remaining over here for the next 60 or 70 years. After that it won't matter."

* * *

DIRECTOR-actor-teacher-lecturer Preminger is 33 but looks somewhat older. Perhaps it is his mature sophistication and his closely cropped head. Every Saturday afternoon, just before matinee, a barber reports to his dressing room in the Plymouth theater and clips his hair as close to the scalp as possible. This helps him look more pig-headed, and lends authority to the character he plays.

Preminger came into this role by a persistent deficiency on the part of various actors who were auditioning for the part. A dozen or so were tried. The play was opening out of town. Claire Booth, who wrote "Margin for Error," turned to him in despair after the newest failure had disqualified himself, and said, "Otto, you've been telling these fellows what to do; why don't you play the part of the Consul yourself?"

"Well," said Otto, "we will see." Which he did. And that's that.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, March 8, 1920.

Petitions were being circulated for nomination of State Auditor Vic Donahey as governor.

Mrs. Levi Kelley, 85, former Mansfield resident, died in Toledo.

George Kurtz resigned as street railway conductor to devote attention to teaching violin pupils.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Kenson returned after month's stay in Florida.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Spicer, 177 Hedges street.

Dwindling supply of natural gas was given as cause for low pressure.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ross and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McKinley left on trip to Indianapolis.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, March 8, 1935.

City officials made plans for continuation of improvements at municipal airport at estimated cost of $140,000.

Ohio Fuel Gas Co. leased 883 more acres in Richland county.

Miss Virginia Farber, daughter of Mrs. Olin Farber, Vennum avenue, was again named an honor student at Ohio State university.

A. C. Forsythe was installed as president of United Commercial Travelers.

Automobiles operated by Mrs. A. L. Adams and C. L. Myers collided at West Fourth street and Linden road.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This day marks the birth in 1818 of Alvan Clark, who made the first achromatic lens in the United States. Some of the chief telescopes of modern times have been made in the establishment founded by him.

One Voter's Views.

Editor News-Journal:

The gentleman from Ashland whose letter appeared in last Saturday's News-Journal seems very much disturbed over the recent election, and makes some erroneous statements and charges.

I am one of those ignorant, uninformed persons who voted for McGregor and I'd like to give my reasons for doing so. I am no Townsendite, indeed no. You know sometimes we voters feel we are "between the devil and the deep blue sea." I would like to ask how the Townsendites could elect McGregor if they couldn't elect Woodward at the last regular election?

I voted for McGregor because I wanted to show I was tired of the New Deal and this disgusting ado about a third term. The only way we could do that was to vote down the Democrat candidate, and we did. Ashbrook certainly didn't say he was against the New Deal and for Garner. If the Washington gang didn't want him elected why did they send in their professional campaign manager to elect him? Even politicians are known by the company they keep.

Ashbrook was not defeated because of any dislike people had for him. There is no doubt he is a fine man and would have filled the position well. I don't know how such an intelligent person as Jane Williams could think he was defeated because of campaign mistakes or because Davey talked too much as usual, when she knows no one in Ohio pays any attention to him. People went to the polls just as I and my neighbors did, without being coerced or hauled there by the highway department, and voted either their approval or disapproval of the present administration.

New Dealers may just as well admit, as most Democrats do, that the wild experiments costing billions of dollars were a grand fizzle and did not bring prosperity. The Republicans probably couldn't bring us out of this mess we're in either, but people want to try something different. We're so dizzy and befuddled by mixed letter alphabetical combinations and stupendous sums flung in all directions, that we want a chance to rest and get our bearings.

The Republican voters knew an election would be held just as soon as the Democrats did—when they saw the statement in the papers. Bricker did what the law says shall be done.

In the former election I voted for Wm. A. Ashbrook because I considered him to be far better qualified for the place than Woodward. If McGregor is a candidate at the next election I may not vote for him—that will depend upon the issues at stake.

Ohio Anecdotes

Stanton, the Patriot.

THE life of Edwin M. Stanton, illustrious son of Kenyon college prompted Philanthropist Andrew Carnegie April 26, 1906 to present Kenyon with an endowment of the Edwin M. Stanton chair of Political Economy, Carnegie delivering the address himself.

The same date Ohioan Col. John J. McCook, of the "Fighting McCooks," gave the all-men's college an oil painting of Stanton, secretary of war under President Lincoln during the Civil war.

Carnegie first met Stanton during the war when Carnegie was given charge of eastern railroads and telegraph lines. They formed a life-long friendship.

Little-known incidents of Stanton's life were brought out in glowing detail by Carnegie when he addressed the Kenyon students.

Listen, World!

Why I Quit Lying.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

AT ONE TIME, in my younger years, I was an extremely proficient liar. The thing seemed to come natural to me.

In the first place, nature had endowed me with that slightly idiotic look which made the other fellow sure that I hadn't sense enough to tell anything but the truth, even if I tried. In addition to that, I had a simple, trusting manner when listening to other liars which automatically seemed to bar me from the union. Surely no gal who swallowed everything so easily could hope to pull a swift one herself.

And so I was able, with great ease, to develop a fibbing technique that was a honey!

Lies, I found, served countless purposes. Primarily, of course, they were swell accident insurance. You could wiggle out of the most embarrassing scrapes—duck the most humiliating retribution—by a few well-timed whoppers. And not really Do Anyone a Mite of Harm.

Lies were also handy in "rassling" with a situation which I disliked even more than blame—boredom. Being a young woman of lively tastes, I frequently found life a very dull affair. Search as one might, there was Simply Nothing Doing. But a good fibber with a smitch of imagination could always Start Something.

Most alluring advantage of all—if you didn't relish obscurity, you could always achieve the center of the stage by a dramatic lie. Pretending to be something you weren't. The ugliest duckling, the sappiest squab, could be transformed into a Bird of Paradise by this seemingly harmless process.

And what normal female was ever satisfied with sitting on the side lines if she could make the Spot?

So—having made these pleasing discoveries—I proceeded to follow them up. And became one of America's better Munchausens. It was a grand racket! And yet, years and years ago, I cut it out. Quit lying and went on to a hundred per cent truth basis.

Why? Did some terrible retribution fall upon me? No. I was getting by gloriously when I stopped lying and s'far as I know, might still be sitting pretty in the public eye if I had continued.

Then was I suddenly smitten with a dazzling vision of righteousness? Wrong again. I'm not the kind of a girl who's moved by visions. Righteousness may listen lovely, and look even better, but unless I can be shown that it's a practical and profitable proposition, the idea leaves me cold. And that is exactly what happened. I was shown that lying didn't pay—and that honesty did.

I was shown by a shocking discovery. I discovered that I was tricking the person on earth I didn't want to trick—I was tricking myself.

There is an old saying that "you can't fool yourself," and most of us fondly believe that this is so. But nothing could be farther from the truth. Actually you can fool yourself quicker, easier and worse than anyone else. And the reason for this is—you want to fool yourself.

You lie to avoid criticism and dodge punishment. And with all your cowardly nature you long to believe that you don't deserve the blame. You lie to Start Something—and no one is hungrier for the ensuing excitement than you, yourself. You lie to achieve the Spotlight—which is the one position your conceited soul likes most.

So, even as you tell a lie, you're using all your ingenuity to believe in it. The other fellow may hesitate a bit before he accepts your Tall Tales. But you, yourself, jump to swallow 'em hook, bait and sinker.

So What? So for a few pleasant moments your lie seems to succeed—but presently you discover that you, yourself, no longer know What Is What or Where You're At! You've achieved the desired Protection and Publicity — but you've condemned yourself to live in a cruel chaos of your own making, where you wander perpetually bewildered, seeking in vain to find your True Self.

Why did I stop lying? That's why. For "what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Or to put in the vernacular of 1940—WHAT DO YOU GAIN BY FOOLING THE OTHER GUY IF YOU MAKE AN EVEN WORSE SUCKER OF YOURSELF?

Writing to Your Congressman.

Be careful what you write to congressmen now. An instructor in political science at Syracuse university is making a study of the letters received by one congressman during the debate on the Neutrality Act. From this he expects to evolve a formula of valuation. This may be used by the hard working secretaries to determine by rule of thumb what attention letters should receive. The manner of placing the stamp, size and style of envelope, penciling and typing may have something to do with the appraisal.

The unfortunate part about the increased communication to the capital is that the volume of the pressure groups is always in danger of being mistaken for the voice of the people. If the Syracuse research scholar will give the congressional secretaries some good common sense rules for sifting out the "inspired" messages to legislators, that would be serving the cause of real democracy. —Toledo Blade.

His First Shoes

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I BOUGHT the baby his first pair of shoes. "Infants' shoes? Right over here," said the clerk, and led me to a rack where five pairs of baby shoes were on a purple piece of cloth. He smiled as he saw me touch first one pair, then another, tenderly. Shoes four inches long, shoes three inches long—I took the longer ones. Ours is a boy with manly little feet. The shoes were soft and white and neat. When the clerk had wrapped them well in paper I put them in my outside topcoat pocket and could scarcely see the bulge.

On my way home, where the road was wide and straight, I stuck my left hand down into my pocket and happily fingered the little package. By the time I reached the home drive the wrapping string was gone and the clean white paper wrinkled and torn in places. To avoid embarrassment when I arrived indoors, I tore it off entirely and when I stepped inside the door I held up the tiny footwear between my thumb and finger.

"New shoes for baby! Oh aren't they cute?" exclaimed our little girl, excitedly. She ran forthwith to bring him, and put them on.

The tiny boy was laid on his back in the middle of a big armchair. While his sister hunted socks, his little hands were grasping the toes of his two pink feet. He would pull the big toe into his mouth and literally make ends meet—a trick his father has been practicing with no great success, for several years. His two new teeth were plainly visible.

Then the shoes were on and his tender feet were encased in leather walls. He tried to grasp the soft soles with his fingers and pull them to his mouth but they would not do so well. Five different times he tried but could not. Then he wept and kicked, with tears running down his cheeks. "But they're cute," sister said, "and you'll have to learn to wear them." She left them on.

When I came back into the room again the little fuzzy infant head had dropped face down into the chair and the imprisoned feet were stretched relaxed upon the cushion. His breathing was soft and rhythmic as he slept. A tear-stain marked the soft curve of his cheek. A discarded bootee was clutched in one wee hand.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Spring is in the air but there is little lilt these days in the heart of Vice President Jack Garner. He is in a distinctly subdued frame of mind and not his usual jovial self.

About the senate he keeps pretty much to himself and does not josh with members and newsmen as he used to do. Reason for the change is the sad state of his presidential boom.

Inside fact is that it is sagging badly. Launched with an astutely managed publicity splash several months ago, the campaign has failed to get off the ground. National and state Democratic leaders, the boys who really decide the slate, are shunning the Garner bandwagon. While it is still rolling, it's not going anywhere.

Evidence of this is in the newspaper polls held in various parts of the country, which invariably rate Garner far down in the choices of local Democratic chiefs. The recent mock primary in Georgia, in which he got only 17 votes as against more than 800 for Roosevelt, was another graphic illustration of the coolness toward him.

But while much of the inner zip of the Garner drive has evaporated, he personally is still determined to see the fight out to the end.

The primary objective of Garner's candidacy is to stop a third term. At the start it was more a "Stop Roosevelt" movement than a drive to nominate Garner. That developed only after it had been under way for some time. Garner is as strongly anti-third term today as ever, and he intends to continue fighting against it right up to the convention, regardless of how he fares himself.

Note—Certain influential Garner leaders, seeing how the cards are shaping up, have privately begun to boost popular House Floor Leader Sam Rayburn in a Roosevelt-Rayburn combination, on the theory that Rayburn on that ticket would placate Garner and the conservative Southerners and keep them in line.

Ickes and the Sharks.

MRS. JOHN T. M'CUTCHEON, wife of the famous cartoonist, was entertaining Mr. and Mrs. L. W. (Chip) Robert of the Democratic national committee on the McCutcheons' Bahaman island recently.

The island is called Treasure Island because it was once the stronghold of pirates in the days of the Spanish Main, and Mrs. McCutcheon was pointing out its bathing beaches to Mrs. Robert.

"What do you do about the sharks and the barracuda," asked Mrs. Robert, noticing the lack of protection between the beach and the open sea.

"We just ignore them," replied Mrs. McCutcheon.

"But what if they are like Mr. Ickes and refuse to be ignored?"

Political Chaff.

REPRESENTATIVE Howard Smith, wing-collared chairman of the special committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board, faces the fight of his political life for re-election this year. William C. Gloth, jr., popular and powerful county judge, is going after Smith's scalp with the argument that he has neglected the interests of his Virginia district to become an aloof "statesman" . . . Dr. Francis Townsend, czar of the old-age pension movement, secretly offered to back Senator Sheridan Downey for president, but Downey declined . . . John L. Lewis apparently is determined to fight back at pro-Roosevelt sentiment in the CIO. Heads of CIO unions who favor a third term have been quietly informed that if per capita dues of their organizations have not been paid up they had better "pipe down."

Borah's Secretary.

MISS CORA RUBIN, secretary to the late Senator Borah throughout his 33 years in Washington, is filling the same position with Senator John Thomas, his successor.

One of the ace secretaries on Capitol Hill, Miss Rubin received a number of government and private offers, but preferred to continue in her old post. Thomas offered her the job immediately after learning he would be named to Borah's seat.

Thomas also secured the desk his great predecessor used for many years. Senator Vandenberg, who laid claim to Borah's office on the right of seniority, wanted the desk, but Miss Rubin quietly removed it to Thomas' office.

Borah's papers and files have been sent to the Library of Congress, where they will be arranged and made available to students and historians. Mrs. Borah has received several requests from writers for access to the documents to compile a biography of her husband.

Mrs. Borah is living quietly in the apartment she and the Senator occupied for many years. Her health is good, but she is still recovering from the ordeal she went through. She has been asked to write her memoirs, but has made no decision as yet.

Letters from friends and admirers of the senator are still coming in. They run into the thousands. One of the most touching was received the morning of the funeral in Boise, Idaho, from an old woman in Canada, who enclosed a $5 bill which she said she had received as a Christmas gift and which she asked be used to buy a spray of flowers for the casket. Mrs. Borah wrote her a personal letter of thanks and enclosed a picture of the senator.

Farm Credit Purge.

MORE heads will shortly be lopped off in the stormy purge of rebellious Old Guarders from the Farm Credit Administration, which has been raging since the ousting last December of Governor F. F. Hill.

Despite Senator Guy Gillette's threat of an investigation, Secretary Wallace is quietly going ahead with his clean-up. First among those slated for the axe is Land Bank Commissioner Albert S. Goss, ringleader of the fierce undercover struggle to wrest the FCA from Wallace and re-establish it as an independent agency under a five-man board.

Goss and his clique have been stirred up ever since the FCA was shifted to the department of agriculture by reorganization. They drafted a bill, introduced by Gillette, to restore the FCA to its former independent status. This, plus the Old Guard resentment of Wallace's liberalization of FCA credit policies, led to Hill's discharge and the recent resignations of Deputy Governor Gerald Lyons and General Counsel Peyton Evans.

It's an FCA secret, but at the time Lyons and Evans got their walking papers, Goss also was asked to resign. He defiantly refused until he could present his case personally to President Roosevelt.

He is destined to get little consolation there, because Roosevelt has been one of the big factors behind Wallace's house-cleaning. Also, the president is a strong admirer of A. C. Black, Hill's successor and a sworn foe of Goss. With Roosevelt-Wallace blessing, Black has cut down FCA farm foreclosures, which reached an all-time high under Hill last summer, more than 50 per cent.

FORUM TO HEAR OF GOVERNMENT IN THIRD TALK

Toledo Professor to Continue Lecture Series Monday at Leland Hotel.

Dr. Mathew M. McMahon, professor of government at DeSales college, Toledo, and an author and lecturer in the field of government and international, delivers the third in the series of "Open Forum" addresses at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom Monday evening.

His subject will be, "Government—Absolute or Limited?"

Dr. McMahon studied at Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C. and the graduate school of Yale university. He received the degree of doctor of philosophy from Catholic university last year; bachelor of philosophy from Carroll college, Helena, Mont., and master of arts degree from Catholic university in 1934.

Awarded Honor.

He continued his graduate studies in government after receiving the Penfield fellowship, awarded to outstanding students nominated by the leading graduate schools of the United States. He also was honored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace with an appointment to the summer session in 1934.

Dr. McMahon is a member of the American Society of International Law and the Catholic Association for International Peace.

In his address, he will discuss if democracy must turn to an all-powerful authoritarian form of government bureaucracy to overcome the present social and economic disorder; can the constitutional guarantees of the rights of the inidividual, family, religion and labor withstand the assaults of communism or totalitarian ideologies, or the ever-expanding administrative machinery of governments?

Monday's lecture is one of five in a series sponsored by Catholic societies of Mansfield and is scheduled for 8:15 p. m. A question and answer period will follow his talk. The fourth lecture in the series is scheduled for Monday, March 25, and the last for Wednesday, April 3.

Watchman Snags Three Suspects By Stalling Elevator.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— An alert night watchman trapped three suspected safe-crackers between floors in a freight elevator of a downtown building last night.

Charles Redman, the 68-year-old watchman, said he heard the elevator moving while making his rounds on the fourth floor.

"Who's there?" he called down the shaft.

"Jack," replied a weak voice.

Redman wasn't acquainted with any "Jack" so he opened the fourth floor elevator door which stopped the elevator automatically between floors. Then he called police.

Police said the trapped men earlier had entered two other buildings and opened one safe, obtaining $13.53 and a sack of slugs. The suspects gave their names as Edward Marsh, 29; Durwood Jones, 30, and Charles Jackson, 28.

Roosevelt Protests 'Runaway Economy' By Congress

HITS THREATS TO ESSENTIAL U. S. SERVICES

Believes Supply Bills Already Slashed More Than Justified, Conferees Say.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today served notice on congressional leaders in fiscal affairs that he will fight "runaway economy" threatening essential government services and his expanded national defense program.

While approving the general movement for economy, he feels that congressional committees already have slashed annual supply bills, which make up his $8,400,000,000 budget, more than is justified.

The president, who recently returned from a vacation during which he was denied $15,000,000 for work on a third set of locks at the Panama canal, indicated to callers that he will follow action of both senate and house on budget bills closely.

The chief executive, these callers disclosed is gravely concerned over slashes of more than $100,000,000 made in the annual naval supply bill in the house, the prospect of slashes in the army bill, and a fight being waged by a senate bloc to pare all national defense bills.

He plans to summon congressional leaders in national defense matters to the White House to make a thorough canvass of the appropriations sought for defense, approximating $2,000,000,000, with a view to determining what cuts can be justified.

Ok's Some Cuts.

One of the president's callers explained that the chief executive approves of some reductions already made by congress but feels that it is indulging in "runaway economy" on other measures.

The goal of congressional "economy bloc" leaders admittedly is to splash budget recommendations by $460,000,000 — the amount of new taxes suggested by the president in his January budget message—and thus avoid a tax bill.

Mr. Roosevelt also revealed to callers that he may reconsider his recommendation of a $1,300,000,000 expenditure for relief in the next fiscal year, as well as make a statement on his attitude on proposals for appropriation of funds to give farmers parity prices.

The relief bill, which includes approximately $1,000,000,000 for WPA, will be the last bill started through congress. The house appropriations committee plans to open hearings on it on March 28.

Address Wrong, Ashland County Suspect Freed

ASHLAND—Ralph Shoemaker, 45, of Loudonville R. D. 2, was freed in common pleas court here, all because authorities who arrested him got his address wrong.

Shoemaker was charged with receiving and concealing stolen goods, and was held in the county jail here 11 days before his hearing.

When he had his hearing before Judge H. E. Culbertson it was determined that this county had no jurisdiction in his case. He had been charged with receiving stolen goods at his home, but his home, instead of being in this county—was in Holmes county.

The banner was won the previous two six-week periods by the fifth grade taught by Arol Willet at Central school, whose class only missed winning the banner again this period by having only 98.25 of the students present and on time. This home room took the honors in attendance at its school building.

Miss Harriet Beverstock's home room won the honors at Hayes school with a percentage of 96.

Both Fishback and McClure are freshmen at Oberlin, and were graduated from Senior high school last June.

WOMAN WRITES DEATH NOTE IN LIPSTICK, LEAPS FROM HOTEL

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—A girl who jumped to her death from a 17th floor downtown hotel room this morning after registering as "J. Stoddard," of New York City, was identified by Inspector John O. Whitman, of the police homicide squad as the former Geraldine Kenyon, 28 years old, of Pontiac, Mich.

Whitman said the woman had been married to a Pontiac man named Bourque.

On the wall of her room was penciled with lipstick "Exit smiling," and in her purse was a note addressed to William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting system, in which she professed her love for him.

In New York Paley said that he had met the girl as "Johanna Stoddard," casually a year ago and that she had written him numerous letters asking him to put her on the radio, but that she had no talent to justify it. Later, he said, she began writing letters declaring she had developed an emotional attachment for him.

The girl had an expensive wardrobe in the room including about $40 worth of clothes purchased yesterday from a downtown department store.

There was $450 in cash in her purse and $250 in traveller's checks.

The note, dated March 8, and addressed "Dear Bill," said:

"I just wanted to thank you for for your kindness. You know how things were with me. I may have said things in desperation that I didn't mean. I hope you do not hate me, and, I mean, I'm sorry. I know you will understand and forgive me. I'm not well. My lungs are in a precarious state, where I have to be so careful. I still love you but I guess you were right. I only fought so hard because my heart hurt so. You've been very white about everything. I can only hope to emulate you and try to do something good with my life. I am very tired.

"Good bye, darling.

"Johanna."

The girl was fully dressed when she jumped from the hotel window.

The girl had registered as J. Stoddard, 404 E. Fifty-fifth St., New York City on March 4.

Says Decorating Business Reflects Love of Colors

Women's love of colors has brought about entirely new conditions in the decorating business, according to Edward Lang, factory representative of the Sherwin-Williams company who addressed 173 painters and decorators from the county last night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The fact that women spend $10,000,000 on hair dye and $15,000,000 on fingernail coloring every year, and twice that amount for lips and cheeks, is an indication that they must have color, Lang said.

So that painters and decorators may best cater to this demand, the Sherwin-Williams company now offers a new color and style guide to show just how paint and color backgrounds will blend with draperies, floor covering and furniture in the same room, Lang told the group.

Assisting Lang last night was Herbert Hathaway, factory representative, and Robert Rowe, local manager of the company. A buffet dinner was served after the lecture.

NEGOTIATIONS REOPENED FOR T.B. SANITARIUM

County Would Place Patients in Thomas Institution on Monthly Rate Basis.

Still interested in the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium as a county convalescent home for tuberculosis patients, county commissioners today had renewed negotiations with T. Amos Jones, owner and operator, in a move to place patients in the sanitarium for care on a monthly rate basis.

Commissioners and five of the six members of the county T. B. advisory board inspected the sanitarium on Lexington avenue yesterday afternoon and then named a committee of three doctors to determine whether it will meet state requirements.

On the special investigating committee are Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner; Dr. John S. Hattery, chairman of the T. B. advisory board, and Dr. Lincoln Fisher, county T. B. physician.

Investigate Facilities.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said they will investigate the housing and sewage facilities at the sanitarium and report to commissioners and the advisory board within a few days.

Mitchell said the commissioners had made no attempt to come to terms with Jones, but he believes an agreement can be effected if the sanitarium is suitable for the care of patients.

Commissioners sought to buy the sanitarium three months ago, but gave up the plan when Jones asked $35,000 for the building.

Under the proposal to contract for hospital facilities, the commissioners believe they can obtain the same service as they would by leasing the sanitarium without the obligations a lease would involve.

"That the several states should enact legislation providing for a system of complete medical service available to all citizens at public expense," was the subject of the debate.

Joseph Reifenberg, Joseph Wojcik and Peter Schemine acted as judges.

FBI STARTS TO PROBE NLRB'S 'LOBBY' ACTION

Charges Federal Law Violated By Bringing Pressure On Proposed Amendments.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating charges today that National Labor Relations board officials violated federal sttautes by lobbying against proposed amendments to the Wagner act.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, it was learned, ordered the investigation last month before he declined to advise Chairman Howard W. Smith of the special house committee investigating the board whether alleged activities of board officials were illegal.

The FBI's investigation was revealed as battle lines formed in the house over drastic changes proposed in the board and the labor act by a majority of Smith's committee.

Those amendments — including ones to abolish the present board and substitute a judicial board to hear cases prosecuted by a new labor act administrator—were sent to the house labor committee which will meet next Wednesday to consider them.

The proposed changes were assailed as "emasculatory" by defenders of the Wagner act and praised as "a step in the right direction" by its critics. Spokesmen for the United States Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring a series of amendments of its own, said it was "a pretty good bill." Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., author of the labor act, said he would make an extensive statement soon.

The Smith committee's proposed amendments are headed for a bitter fight in the house labor committee. A majority of its members usually support the administration.

Advocates of Wagner act revision contend that any attempt by the committee to pigeon-hole the amendments will result in one of two retaliatory moves: 1. A discharge petition, requiring 218 names, for removing the bill from the labor committee after 30 days; 2. A rule from the rules committee ordering it to the floor for debate.

CHAPTER XIV

Clifford was a good companion He kept up a running fire of lively chatter as they walked to the theater. It was evident he was pleased to have found an opportunity to break through Star's reserve.

"I hope you won't think me a nuisance," he said. "But it is true then that you are not engaged or married or anything?"

"Does it matter?"

"In other words, it's none of my business. All right, beautiful, I get it, but since you've accepted my invitation for tonight, I may understand that you are free to accept others?"

This was so different from anything Star had been used to that she was confused. She felt he must be teasing her It couldn't really matter so much as he was pretending. But it was fun. She had been too serious all her life, she decided, replying demurely, "Why don't you try it and see?"

"Don't think I won't," he retorted.

He had no idea that this was the first time she had ever gone to a movie with a boy. Bob had taken her dancing but their romance had been so brief it seemed like a dream, looking back upon it. Later they stopped at a soda fountain, lining up on the tall stools with other young people as Star had always secretly longed to do. Laughing at nothing, gay for no reason. Conscious of the admiration which burned like a steady flame in her companion's eyes.

* * *

But when he attempted to kiss her good night she evaded him by opening the door and slipping inside.

"All right," he said, following her. "You win, but eventually..."

"Good night," Star smiled, holding out her hand "And thank you for a lovely evening."

It had been lovely, she reflected as she prepared for bed, and she slept undisturbed by those former troubling visions of Milton Wood. The next day his secretary had returned to work and Star told herself it might be months before she would see him again. By that time she would be cured.

And now as a reward for her sensible attitude, life at the boarding house began to assume a new importance. Encouraged by the fact that she had gone out with Clifford, two of the other boys asked for a date. The girls, recognizing a rival who must be reckoned with, began to include her in their plans for week-ends. If Star was going it would be easier to secure the necessary number of escorts. Her shy friendliness and utter lack of coquetry won favor. While girls of her acquaintance were never to feel completely at ease with her, they dared not disregard her, nor could they dislike a girl so obviously unconscious of her power.

* * *

It was the beginning of a period such as most girls take for granted but which until now had ben unknown to Star. Picnics and swimming parties, long drives to open dancing pavilions where the lessons Mamie had forced her to take were at last of some use. Star did not know how to swim but she had no fear and soon learned.

Her days at the office passed quickly. She hurried home to bathe and dress for the lazy summer evenings and tumbled into bed too healthily tired to dream. Laughter began to bubble up in her heart like a little fountain. Reserved as always about her past, she appreciated this careless comradeship more highly because she had had none of it before.

She played no favorites but the race settled down to Clifford Payne and Bruce Donovan. They were firm friends and the three of them became inseparable. Calling themselves "The Three Musketeers," they were in constant demand and made all their plans together. No wonder that Star's face became happier. Her worries seemed to be over and even an occasional twing about Mamie failed to disturb her. Until that day, when fate, which could never let her alone for long, crashed into her life again.

The crowd had driven to the country and were returning early on Sunday morning, weary after an evening of dancing. Star and Clifford were riding in Bruce's car. Star was sitting between the two boys with Clifford's arm about her shoulders, humming the music which was still running through her head, when a truck they had passed dashed by at a speed which made Bruce shout, "What's the rush? Where's the fire?"

"Must be drunk," Clifford commented.

Before Bruce would answer a second car whizzed past, forcing the truck from the road. There was a report like a tire exploding, then the sedan sped on and the truck toppled over a slight embankment into a ditch.

"My gosh, did you see that? He was trying to get away from them! They must have shot him!"

"Did you get their number?" Clifford asked excitedly.

"Didn't have a chance."

"Pull up over here, Bruce. Let's see what happened."

Bruce stopped the car and the two boys leaped out.

"You stay here, Star," they advised.

But drawn by some inner compulsion, Star's eyes followed them. She could see that the driver of the truck had slumped over his wheel. A scar on his face was plainly visible in the moonlight. It was Joe!

"Don't touch him!" Bruce warned. "They certainly got him, all right."

"Some one will have to telephone the police," Clifford said. "Maybe we'd better do it, Bruce. There's probably a phone at that farmhouse."

* * *

When they returned to the car, Star was shaking visibly. Her eyes were like caverns in her white face but she said nothing. She rode with them to the farmhouse and waited for them to return, giving no sign that she had recognized that huddled figure in the truck. Death had come to her stepfather in the violent manner she had always feared. But she would have nothing to do with him. She had feared and hated this man in life. Why should she be the one to identify him now?

Sick at heart and silent, Star faced her problem. Mamie loved Joe Delevan. She had endured disgrace and abuse for him. And although she had forfeited all claim to Star's consideration, Mamie was her mother. What was Star going to do about it?

"What's the matter, Star? You haven't spoken since we saw that accident?" Clifford asked as they reached the city.

With an effort she said, "I'm all right."

He put a hand beneath her chin, turning her face otward his. "You don't look it," he told her

"Nasty shock," Bruce agreed. "I don't feel any too good myself. Let's stop somewhere for a cup of coffee."

Star demurred. It was already so late and she was tired. Would they mind taking her home first; then they could stop for coffee on their way to the garage.

"Just as you say," Bruce said. "Who do you suppose killed that guy?"

"Gangsters," Clifford surmised. "He was probably in a racket of some kind."

* * *

Star said nothing. Chilled and shaken, she ran into the boarding house, watching from the window until the car had disappeared. The garage was three blocks away and there was an all night lunch place on the way. She knew now what she must do. Quickly before the boys came back, she must go in the opposite direction and find a taxi.

Dawn was breaking over the dingy apartment house where Mamie lived. Star hoped her mother might already be informed of Joe's death but she doubted it. As she began her climb up the dirty stairs she was remembering how she had vowed never to come here again. Yet she was back of her own accord. No one could guess how reluctantly.

The door was locked and she had no key, so she was compelled to ring.

HOLY BOOK IN TRADE TONGUE

Missionary Returns With New Testament In 'African.'

BUTLER, Pa.—(U.P.)—The Rev. Clair Ellenberger, who returned here for a brief visit after 22 years of missionary work in French West Africa, brought with him an African "trade language" translation of the New Testament.

The translation, executed by Ellenberger, his wife and other mission workers, was a monumental task, especially since the west coast trade patois had no previous written form.

Ellenberger said the language is understood by natives as far as 1,000 miles from the coast and would greatly simplify teaching of Christian tenets to native "pastors."

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

WITH the sun shining yesterday (just as we were beginning to think that it probably would never shine again), groups of children roller skating and Mrs. Frances Stockwell reporting a robin in her yard, it looked as though spring might be on the way here at long last—but with the gray skies overhead today, it's beginning to look a little doubtful again.

No matter what the weather, our Mansfield students keep themselves busy on their respective college campuses—and all the evidence still points to the fact that they're leaders among their fellow students. . . . Jean Sowers, who's a senior at Otterbein college in Westerville, has been named associate editor of the Quiz and Quill magazine—a semi-annual literary publication of the school. . . . The magazine (to be issued by the Quiz and Quill writing club this spring) will contain original poems, stories and essays written by the students—in fact, a contest is under way now for contributions. . . . Jean (who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sowers of Bellville) was elected recently as one of Otterbein's "most representative" seniors and was appointed the Winter Homecoming queen. . . . And that's not all either—Jean is also the college's highest ranking student, having a record of all-A's for the first semester of this year.

HOME AGAIN: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spreng have just returned from a two-months vacation in Florida . . . where they were staying in Miami Beach . . . The Sprengs drove down and back.

Robert E. Leisy recently received one of the highest honors to be attained by a new cadet in the infantry battalion at Culver Military academy when he won the C. R. (Culver Rifles) award. . . . This is granted on the basis of written and oral tests for special excellence in various infantry movements, military courtesy, the manual of arms, guard duty, arm signals, rank and command, knowledge of the rifle and bayonet and rifle marksmanship safety rules. . . . In addition to all the technical subjects in either the infantry, cavalry or field artillery, a cadet is also required to pass an auto safety test given under the direction of the Chicago Motor club. . . . So Bob's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Leisy, can be more than proud of him—just as we all are.

ALTHOUGH they aren't there on vacation, I'm sure most any of us would trade places with the Paul Burgeners. . . . They went out to Sun Valley, Ida., about the middle of December, as Mr. Burgener plays with Harl Smith's band during the winter season there. . . . I just had a letter from them with some pictures of the place that would make the best of us envious. . . . And strange as it might seem to us after our snowy winter, the Burgeners write that the snow for skiing there this season was quite poor—with the only good places being on Dollar and Proctor mountains where the brush was cleared and on Baldy mountain because of the extreme altitude. . . . Among the screen celebrities our friends have seen there this season are Norma Shearer, Richard Dix, Ina Claire and Darryl Zanuck. . . . The Burgeners are leaving Sun Valley later this month to go to California with the band.

Have Fun Make Your Own Candy

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

CANDY MAKING is lots of fun. Many tried their hand at it for the first time at Christmas; now they are ambitious and want to vary the excellent commercial article with some goodies of their own making. Here are some recipes, all for healthsome, toothsome candies.

Equipment for successful candy making includes a pan large enough to allow for boiling and heavy enough to prevent ingredients from scorching; a two-tined fork for dipping; a wooden spoon for beating; a spatula, wax paper, metal baking sheets, a platter, standard measuring cups and spoons, and a candy thermometer. Use a dependable recipe and don't try to change it. Measure and follow directions exactly.

Orange Fruit Paste is made with three-fourths cup ground, unpeeled oranges, one-half cup orange juice, two and one-half cups apple sauce or stewed fresh or dried apricots or peaches, one-half cup liquid pectin, one-half cup light corn syrup and two cups sugar. Cook oranges, orange juice and cooked fruit for twenty minutes, stirring often. Use a large kettle, preferably gallon size. Add pectin, corn syrup and sugar. Cook 15 or 20 minutes longer, stirring constantly. When mixture is consistency of a thick preserve, pour one inch deep in shallow pan. When cold, cut into squares or other desired shapes. If desired, roll in powdered sugar. Recipe makes two and one-half pounds.

Pleasant Change.

Orange Sugared Walnuts make a pleasant change from the more familiar salted nuts. Use eight ounces walnuts, one and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup orange juice and one teaspoon grated orange peel. Cook sugar and orange juice to 240 degrees Farenheit or soft ball stage. Remove from heat, add orange peel and nuts. Stir until syrup begins to look cloudy. Before it hardens, drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper. Separate into individual kernels.

Uncooked Fruit Carmels are sweets that are different and easy to make. Use one cup raisins (seeded or seedless), one-half cup figs, one-half cup dried apricots, one cup stoned dates, one cup walnuts, one-half cup candied orange peel, six candied cherries (optional), two to four tablespoons orange juice. Wash dried fruits. Put through food chopped with nuts. Moisten with orange juice, using just enough to hold fruits and nuts together. Pack into buttered pan. Chill overnight in refrigerator. Cut in squares and dust with powdered sugar. To do this, put a little of the powdered sugar in a small paper bag. Drop candy squares in bag, a few at a time, and shake.

If you like to make chocolate fudge, here is a swell variation. To your favorite fudge recipe add four teaspoons grated orange peel, while beating. Gives the fudge an original, pleasing flavor.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I was no longer at sea as to what to do for Edith Fairfax. Years of self-repression, of stored up poison against me and adoration for Dicky, to neither of which she had dared give full voice, had brought her to this breaking point. She was sobbing and hysterical penitent in a mood for confession.

I gripped her shoulder roughly, and shook her slightly.

"Stop this at once, Ede," I said. "You know Lillian is coming back here at any minute, and the chances are that she will bring Harry and Dicky with her. Surely you don't want them to hear this!"

"Where can I go?" she whispered. "You're right. I mustn't see anybody, but—I'm in the nursery with Katharine, you know."

"You must come to my room until you're yourself again," I decided swiftly. "Now pull yourself together while I look up and down the corridor to see if anyone is in sight. When the coast is clear, I'll whisk you over to my room, and then we'll decide what's best to do. Will you be ready when I come back?"

"I'll be ready," she said. "But please don't be long."

"Probably not a minute," I said, and made good on the promise, even though the instant I closed the door behind me I saw Lillian coming back.

I hurried to meet her, and spoke: "Ede's been hysterical, but she's better," I said. "I've got to get her over to my room."

"Need any help with her?"

"No, but she doesn't want you or anyone to see her."

"Okay. I'll just trot around the corner, and see that Mother Graham doesn't take a notion to take a constitutional along here in the next few seconds. Good hunting"

She was gone upon the word, and I went back to Edith with the warm glow around my heart which Lillian's ready co-operation always brings to me.

"The coast is clear," I told Edith. "Come quickly."

Purposely I did not touch her or offer to aid her in any way, and we walked down the hall together in the most ordinary manner. But once inside the room my manner changed.

"Take off your shoes and your dress," I commanded, "and put on this negligee of mine. Then lie down and calm yourself, while I go and get you a glass of warm milk. Later we'll talk things all out."

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 9.

THE LUNAR and mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day are rather conflicting but eventually culminate in constructive and satisfactory results. Preliminary to success there will be a decisive breaking up of static or longthwarting conditions which, when doggedly attacked, will pave the way for sound progress and a stabilization of the fortunes. Real possessions should increase, but be alert to wiles and schemes and sign papers cautiously. In the domestic, social and sentimental relations there is much security and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of very definite progress in the matter of advancing their interests and enhancing their fortunes. These may be put on a stable basis by the breaking up of old, congested or stagnant situations to make way for constructive results by hard work, initiative and sound judgment. But be wary of schemes and sign all papers with care. A similar state of advancement and security pervades all domestic, social and affectional relationships. Elders are of benefit.

A child born on this day may be serious, profound, studious and hard working, and practical as well as as enterprising. Its stability of character and sound principles should lead it to success, happiness and recognition.

Lighter Touch In Make-up

By MME. QUI VIVE

Life changes, fashions change, girls change. Look at the photographs of movie stars as they were ten or fifteen years ago; they are younger now in appearance. All these evolutions make for youthfulness. The reason why make-up has gone subtle is because the lavish use of it showed up complexion defects, made women look older. Lavish rouge and lipstick on a girl of sixteen and she'll seem to be the same age as her mother.

The ice-cream-and-roses pattern has been revived. Artifice may be necessary, but you're supposed not to reveal it. We've used ruby lipstick so long that we've forgotten what the natural color is. Nobody can kick up about lipstick. Those who don't use it look face-naked. But one is justified in registering a protest when the shade used is unpleasant, too vivid, or when the application is uneven, patchy or carrying a ziggy border. Those defects of technique are uncalled for when, for a small sum, you can buy a lipstick brush, outline the lips, and have the rosy glow as slick as a whistle.

To attain a really charming effect with the items of the make-up box requires the seeing eye, patience, a little practice and the utmost discrimination, not to mention the use of the old head when selecting colors.

When the task is finished the skin should carry freshness, as if one had just come out of the bath and life seemed cheerful and zestful. If the bath precedes the putting on of a new face, the complexion will carry clearness and glow. If you have a nice canvas, you can paint your portrait better than if you have to worry about defects of texture or coloring.

Whether or not a foundation cosmetic is necessary depends upon the condition of the skin. Extreme dryness calls for a creamy foundation; extreme oiliness for an astringent lotion.

Powder must never be ground into the flesh, but patted on lightly, the application starting on the neck, the nose treated last so it won't get too big a load of the fluff-stuff. Remove the surplus with a camel's hairbrush made for the purpose. If dry rough is used, make a cosmetic sandwich. Powder, rouge, then powder again.

Don't wear eye shadows in the daytime. Match rouge and lipstick. Have powder slightly darker than the skin. A little shine on the eyelids makes the soul windows sparkle. You can use vaseline or a liquid cleanser for the purpose.

SEE THE LITTLE CARDS

Failure to note the size of the small cards, and make the logical inferences from them, can prove as costly to you as failure to notice what suit has been led and therefore suffer a revoke penalty. Many a time your partner's lead may prove that he has not a four-card suit and consequently enable you to count the number of cards in the suit held by the declarer. That knowledge, added to what you already know, may enable you to deduce other important facts and point the way to correct defense.

South's only possible excuse for his bidding was that he rated himself as a fine player of the cards and his opponents as very weak on defense. He was right on half of his hypothesis.

West led the heart 9 to the K, South playing the Q. East next took his heart A, South playing the J and West the 6. He then led his diamond 3. South ran three trumps, the spade Q and J, entered dummy with the heart 10 and ran three more spades, discarding all of his clubs and making five-odd.

East defended his diamond return, arguing that he feared South had the club A, in which event a club switch would have cost a trick. His safe return was a heart. Had West held four hearts, his correct lead would have been the fourth-best 3. So either South had one more heart, making the 10 a dangerous entry to dummy, or two more, in which event West could have ruffed a third heart lead. West's failure to open the heart 3 originally was the key to the hand and, if read rightly, would have resulted in a two-trick set.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Mothers-in-Law Form Association

It seems that the hyphenated word which has so long masqueraded the relationship with sons and daughters' husbands and wives is to be cut by mandate of the Mother-in-law Association of New York. In its place they have adopted "Kin-Mother."

Dr. Wilfred Funk has promised to put "Kin-Mother" in the next edition of the Standard Dictionary. And while we sympathize deeply with mothers-in-law in their dislike for the unkind jokes about the word, one fears that the "Kin-Mother Association" may be no more immune to the gibes formerly directed toward the old word mother-in-law.

Who's so helpful to the young couple as a good mother-in-law? Who takes care of the children when the parents want an evening outing? Who preaches tolerance, helps out with money and averts tragedies by saying "We went through just such problems ourselves?" But too often the friendly deeds of the good mother-in-law are submerged, while those of the cantankerous are awarded a five-star final.

The mother-in-law name controversy has stimulated some pretty dreadful attempts at humor. Among them, rejected by the judges ,were "ersatz-mother" and "blitzkrieg-mother." The palm for downright meanness could be awarded to "hit-and-stay mother" and hardly less friendly was "police mother."

These jests were taken in good part by women who looked young enough to be the grand-daughters of former generations of mothers-in-law. Waved hair, cared-for rosy skins, smart dresses, made the term mother-in-law a misnomer. Apart from being well-groomed and well-dressed, they had plenty of humor, which is even more necessary in the relationship of a mother-in-law to a son's or daughter's family.

THEATERS

LACKING the becurled and bedimpled perfection of Shirley Temple and the voice of Deanna Durbin, little Virginia Weidler steps out as one of the top ranking child actresses as Tannie Edison in "Young Tom Edison." . . . One of the most extensive searches ever made for a player, except the Scarlett O'Hara role, will be instituted for Jody in "The Yearling." There isn't a boy in Hollywood who meets the requirements and so M-G-M is sending out three camera crews and talent scouts to find a boy and bring him back alive. . . . Judy Garland will be seen in the next Hardy picture, "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante," her second one in the Hardy Family series and the third time she has been with Mickey Rooney in a film. She was in "Love Finds Andy Hardy" and later in "Babes In Arms." They are also scheduled to do another musical together. . . .

First Half Novel Filmed.

For the motion picture version of Kenneth Roberts' historical novel, M-G-M decided to make it in two parts, since the second part of the novel showed an entirely different Major Rogers than the hero of the first part. The first part of "Northwest Passage," under that title, comes to the Ohio Saturday noon and will have a Saturday midnight showing. Spencer Tracy plays the indomitable Major Rogers who leads the command through almost insurmountable barriers and hazards; Robert Young is young Capt. Towne and Walter Brennan plays Hunk Marriner. The time of the story is in the latter half of the 1700's during the last French and Indian wars. Ruth Husey has the leading feminine role.

Kipling Story Revived.

The picture which Paramount made from Rudyard Kipling's novel, "The Light That Failed," has won much praise from reviewers. Ronald Colman is starred as the soldier-artist whose life is filled with two great tragedies—the saber wound he receives in the British Sudan campaign, and the meeting with Bessie, the gutter-snipe who proves an evil star. Supporting the star are Walter Huston as his loyal friend and companion; Ida Lupino as Bessie and Muriel Angelus as the old sweetheart. The film is booked for tomorrow and through Tuesday at the Madison, along with "Blondie On A Budget."

"Chip of the Flying U."

One of B. M. Bower's early Western novels, "Chip of The Flying U" is remade with Johnny Mack Brown as Chip, and Doris Weston as the "lady-doctor," who is the sister of Chip's boss. Fuzzy Knight, is seen as Weary, one of the ranch hands. There is also a Western flavor to "Henry Goes Arizona" the second film at the Ritz today and tomorrow. Frank Morgan plays the old vaudeville actor who finds himself in Arizona. Virginia Weidler, Guy Kibbee and Slim Sumerville are also in the cast.

Legendary Figure.

Wild Bill Saunders, legendary figure of the Old West, comes to the screen of the Majestic theater in "Pioneers of The Frontier." Bill Elliott is starred again as the outlaw-tamer who has a death-dealing trigger finger and dynamite in his fists. Linda Winters supplies the romance. Making love to Virginia Bruce is getting to be a habit with Walter Pidgeon. He started it in "Society Lawyer," and continues it in "Stronger Than Desire," which brings them to the Majestic today.

Royal Mounted In Action.

Another of the exciting Renfrew of the Royal Mounted stories is booked at the Park for the last two days of the week. It is "Crashing Thru" and shows James Newill as Renfrew, who goes after the leader of a band of high-jackers. The chase takes him over the Inside Waterway from Seattle to Juneau, Alaska. "They Went to War," an old film revived, has Lawrence Grey and Lola Lane carrying the major roles.
